

An overview of the CIDB International Project Database

As the main function of the CIDB International Project Database is to facilitate the public in gaining in-depth information related to overseas construction projects, it therefore provides users the necessary ability to perform data mining by querying project details and summary, as well as monitoring the statuses of overseas projects.

CIDB's International Division has initiated the CIDB International Project Database, a web-based information system that provides information on current and completed overseas projects by Malaysian contractors. The recently commissioned information system is poised to support one of CIDB's pinnacle functions, which is to promote, stimulate and assist in the export of services related to the construction industry.

The CIDB International Project Database is accessible to everyone via the CIDB official website at www.cidb.gov.my or at <http://apps.cidb.gov.my/international> where the application is being hosted. Reports of any construction activities overseas are submitted online, directly into the system by industry players. Data submissions are made on a voluntary basis and closely monitored by CIDB's International Division.

The CIDB International Project Database is also particularly aimed for relevant ministries and government agencies such as the Ministry of Works, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Bank Negara Malaysia. Academicians and students (especially those embarking on Construction Management research) can also benefit greatly from the system as it provides various types of first-hand information to assist them in understanding the portfolio, capabilities and reaches of Malaysian contractors all over the world.
