PROJECT GREENSHIELD „CLEAN AIR FOR CHILDREN“

IMPROVING AIR QUALITY IN KINDERGARTENS THROUGH NANOTECHNOLOGY APPLICATIONS

Project description

A unique nationwide project "Clean Air for Children" was launched in Czech Republic in October 2013, and it is intended for two years to monitor and subsequently gain valuable and relevant data concerning indoor air quality in indoor kindergartens in various locations in the Czech Republic and thus confirm the high degree of efficiency of the latest environmental effects of nanotechnology SmartCoat™ (transparent layer of photocatalytic TiO<sub>2</sub>) towards the improvement of air quality in interiors.

The project builds on a global project GREEN SHIELD, within dozens of technical applications were already made and results exceeded expectations. Foreign studies and measurements clearly show demonstrable long-term reduction of microbial contamination of surfaces and areas that are treated with this technology.

Based on the identified and measured facts, this trial has demonstrated high efficiency of photocatalytic applications of transparent layers in areas with increased demands on air quality and not only in terms of the security compliance with legal limits and standards, but especially the demonstrated benefit in reducing the morbidity of larger numbers of people, present in the treated areas most of the day.

Respiratory diseases and the spread of diseases

Slowly, but surely changing situation and the nature of the climate, ecological and population changes, associated with building "a world without borders" carries an impact on this very frequent group of both children and adults diseases. Frequently discussed climate change lately, may affect the frequency of some respiratory infections. Environmental conditions, air quality and the environment in general are indirectly reflected in the characteristic, frequency and the way of spreading respiratory infections.

Inflammatory diseases of the respiratory tract have long been the most common causes of morbidity in the world and in the Czech Republic. They are also at the first place of incapacity for work, and are still having a negative premortality.

The situation is further complicated by regular emergence of new virus mutations, resulting in fast-spreading virus outbreaks. Respiratory infection by the lesion of the respiratory tract infection is divided into upper and lower respiratory airways. Upper respiratory infections, which are often of viral origin, constitute a frequent disease also at the front line physicians.

In today's world without borders or influenza vaccination can not reliably handle this situation and be under control. The target of applications the photocatalytic layer SmartCoat™ is to reduce morbidity and rates of hospitalization of patients as a part of nosocomial infections.

Project evaluation

During 2014, this project involved many towns and villages throughout the Republic and it is these: Brno, Český Těšín, Havířov, Mladá, Horní Štěpán, Kroměříž, Olomouc, Prostějov, Rožnov pod Radhoštěm, Slonava, Súdňovka, Třebíč, Trnec, Vyškov.

The average number of children: 1 400
 The average number of classes: 60
 Children age range: 2,5 - 7 years
 Total applied area: 14 700 m<sup>2</sup>

To determine the effectiveness of reducing the morbidity of children more class facilities that have been applied only partially were examined and statistically evaluated, and therefore they should in its plant applied and unapplied class.

In the framework of the annual monitoring and evaluation of morbidity the following result was achieved:

+ In the case of a sample of 1 400 children morbidity, thanks to the effect of reduced morbidity of 8,3 %

CHILD MORBIDITY REDUCTION BY 8,3 %
THE ATTENDANCE WILL BE INCREASED BY 116 CHILDREN

Project results show demonstratively the positive effect of photocatalytic surfaces towards reducing morbidity people's in terms of respiratory diseases in the community, leading to an increase in attendance not only in nurseries, and reduces the need for parents child care benefits or other solutions during the child's disease.

SmartCoat™ technology creates a highly efficient Eco Active photocatalytic surfaces with long-term antimicrobial effects and no health risks to humans, animals, wild animals and plants, and with no dangerous effect on the environment.
